THE COPENHAGENIZE INDEX 2013

BICYCLE FRIENDLY CITIES

The Copenhagenize Report

Once again, Montreal maintains its position as North America's premiere bicycle city. With cycle tracks dating from the late 1980s, Montreal has long been ahead of the curve. The city's bike share system is successful and cycling is on the up - both commuting and use of the bicycle for errands and socially. Montreal is one city in North America where bicycles feature strongly in the nightlife of the city. Good advocacy is influential and the city's recent move to gather all the players around one table in order to consult more efficiently is a wise move. Politically, having someone bold like Luc Ferrandez, Mayor of the Plateau, helps move the city towards the next level. We see more cargo bikes in Montreal than most cities in North America, which is a healthy sign that all-round bicycle culture is embraced.

Montreal fell from #8 in 2011 but at #11 this time around, the city remains strong.

Copenhagenize Fixes

With such a fantastic foundation, built up over so many years, it's time for a big push forward in order to capitalise. A push that will set the standard for North American cities. The bi-directional cycle tracks are crowded in the rush hour and we would prefer to see more best practice infrastructure on more streets. It's time to move on, Montreal. The cycle tracks on Laurier East are a step in the right direction. A number of North American cities are hovering just outside the Top 20 and they're not going to wait for your lead. Maintain your impressive position by taking a great leap forward and take your leadership role seriously.

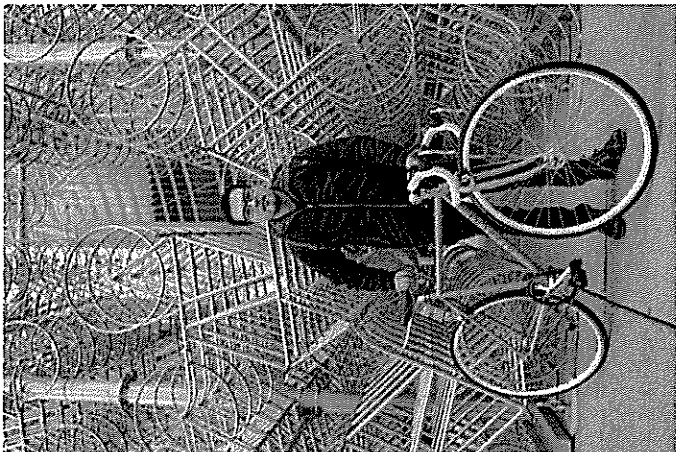

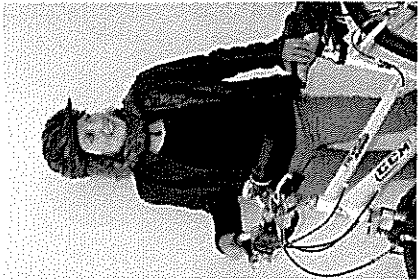

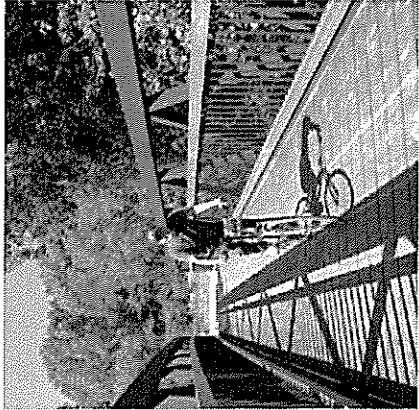

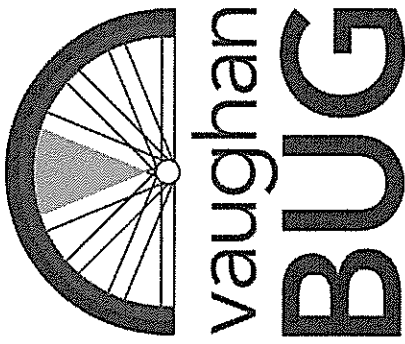

...thank you!
